NATION IS AWAITING WORD FROM HENRY FORD

President Coolidge Holds Offer Is Not Affected

BAPTIST INSTITUTE
OPENS IN OCTOBER
Leaders Will Attend Meeting Here From Many Sections
DR. BRYAN WILL LEAD THE PARLEY

Plans Are to Be Made For Systematic Donations

October 10, 11 and 12, the first stewardship and budget institute for Alabama will be held in Decatur, led by Dr. O. E. Bryan, director for the entire Southern Baptist convention. Dr. Bryan will hold other institutes in Alabama, Dr. C. C. Davisson, pastor of the First Baptist church of Decatur, stated and Baptist leaders are expected here for the October 10-12 gathering from all parts of the state. It is the plan that Dr. Bryan shall instruct the leaders of the church in Alabama as to the aims and purposes of plans of the "better budgets" campaign, and then the leaders are expected to relay the messages of the Decatur institute to the many Baptist congregations of the state.

It is expected that Frank Burkhalter, of Nashville, publicity director of the entire Southern Baptist convention, and S. H. Bennett, of Montgomery, superintendent of field work among Baptists in Alabama, will attend the institute here early in October and make addresses. It is the plan of the institute to give, during the systematic church giving, that is, the systematic campaigns as the $16,000,000 drive will not be needed in the future.

It was pointed out by Dr. Davisson at the accessibility of Decatur to Nashville where Dr. Bryan has his headquarters and the accessibility of the city to all Baptists of Alabama made Decatur the logical place for the initial institute of Alabama Baptists, relative to better business methods for their churches. It is expected the sessions of the institute will be held either in the central Baptist or at the First Baptist church of Decatur. Dr. W. P. Reeves, pastor of the central Baptist church, and Dr. Davisson have been appointed to make arrangements for the gathering. On Wednesday night, October 10, the institute will open with the usual formalities of all conventions, speeches welcome, responses statements of objects for the convention, etc. All day Thursday, Thursday night the routine work of the institute and part of Friday will be devoted to the work of the institute directed by Dr. Bryan. Dr. Davisson promises a full detailed statement concerning the convention early in October.

BANKS REFLECTING PROSPERITY HERE

The general prosperity of this section is reflected in statements made today by local banks, following the fall of the comptroller of the currency which shows the institutions to be in splendid condition, with business growing and collections good. This fall's business is opening well according to all reports gleaned from retail wholesale and banking circles. One of the best indexes to condition of a community it is said, is the formal statements of the banking institutions in that community. The fact that the statements here are so favorable is taken to reflect credit upon the city as well as upon the banks themselves.

This community has been congratulated for its big, healthy banking institutions because of the service they are in position to render and do render and the statements issued today is further evidence that the financial side of the community's life is well cared for.

Persia Balks the Conference Plan

GENEVA, Sept. 25.—The proposed solution for the interpretation of article X of the League of Nations covenant was rejected by the League assembly in plenary session today. Persia alone voted against the resolution, but a unanimous vote was necessary to obtain the assembly's approval.

SEVENTY MINERS IN PIT ARE DROWNED

BUILDING ROADS AS SUN SHINES HERE

Ten Working Parties in County Busy With Many Projects

HUNDREDS ARE EMPLOYED NOW

Ten Ton Tractors Used to Grade Moulton Highway

The highway workers on Morgan County are making roads while the sun shines, reports in the office of county engineer M. S. Bingham show. There are exactly ten working parties now busy on as many projects throughout the county, and two roads have been completed. These are, the Somerville, Hartselle pike on project "F", the other is the Somerville, Decatur pike on project "E". Of the road working parties now taking advantage of the road weather, one is now on the Chestnut grove mountain road, and it has all but completed the carpet coat of asphalt on that pike which leads from Decatur to Danville, on the road from the end of the Lawrence county line through Jandy's Cove to Cotaco Creek, are about 200 men working under the direction of S. K. Jones. This work is known as project "C". Two crushing plants are operated by these workers and two stone quarries have been opened along this route. G. C. Goodrich and company have a squad of men working out from Moulton toward Cotaco Creek, on project "G". The Goodrich Company also has an outfit on the pike between Hartselle and Danville. Little Brothers have a working company on the road from McKendrie's Chapel west from Falkville, which is completing the west side of the Lawrence county line. Still another outfit is at work on the road near Flint, which runs east toward Chestnut grove mountain. The county has another company at work on the McKendrie to Falkville pike, known as the "West Pike". A big ten ton tractor is now being used to grade the road which begins at the end of Moulton street and continues toward Moulton the capital of Lawrence county, as far as the Lawrence line. A road working company busy under the direction of the McKendrie Brothers, between Mean's bridge and Danville. Burleson and Jackson, contractors are putting stone in the East Hartselle road.

Grows No Cotton For Three Years

Elbert Weaver, former employee of the Morgan County National bank and the son of Rev. J. E. Weaver, who owns two farms in Morgan County said Tuesday he had not planted cotton in three years, and that the enemies of the staple were not bothering his prospects. Mr. Weaver raises hogs, hay, corn and chickens. He declared that the market for cream was getting better and that he was thinking of adding a dairy to his farming operations. Mr. Weaver says he reads The Daily and keeps up with the times and the news of Decatur and the county.

Mosquitoes Attack In Large Numbers

Considerable concern has been felt here over the appearance of late of such large numbers of mosquitoes, lest they infect the people by their bites with new malaria germs. Householders notice the pests encamped along the screen wire doors, ready at the least opportunity to enter their residences. Screens are being reinforced, large mesh screen wire painted over to decrease the size of the wire openings and new screens are being put in, although the season for mosquitoes is supposed to be over soon. It is believed the continued rains in this section have superinduced the new and large supply of mosquitoes. Dr. L. C. Havens, of the state board of health when asked the probable cause of so many mosquitoes made the laconic reply: "You must have too many good breeding places for them."

Mrs. Delilah Draper Called By Death

Funeral services for Mrs. Delilah Draper, mother of James L. Draper circuit court clerk, will be held at the Foreman Cemetery near Somerville, Tuesday morning, with interment there. Mrs. Draper died Monday morning at 5:30 o'clock at the family residence, 650 Sherman street. Mrs. Draper was the widow of D. W. Draper who was a prominent farmer of Centre Grove. The deceased was in her 78th year. She leaves one son, James L. Draper, one brother, F. G. Ryan, of Centre Grove and a large number of grandchildren. Mrs. Draper was greatly beloved by all who knew her.

MORGAN CO. BOY IN NAVAL DISASTER

James Allen, son of J. F. Herring, of Basham's Chapel, writes home of his experiences the night of the wreck of the seven destroyers off the Pacific coast on September 1, as follows: U. S. S. Woodbury. San Diego, Calif. September 11, 1923. Dear Mother and all:—

Hope this finds you all well and enjoying life to the fullest extent. I am well and feeling fine though on last Saturday night I had a close call. Guess you heard of the wreck and received the telegram that I sent. It was the worst night that I ever spent though I am unhurt. There were seven ships, all making 20 knots or about 25 miles per hour and hit the rocks. In about five minutes they were all sinking. The Young turned over in about 90 seconds. There were 23 lives lost as near as they could find out. Every body was saved on the Woodbury. We hit a rock about the size of a house and at first we were close enough for two men to jump over, but the waves soon washed us away and we threw lines over and the two men made them fast on the rocks, and that's how we got off by climbing over the lines. It was so foggy and rough that we could not see anything and lights all went at once. We had to stay all night on the rocks, some of us nearly naked and all were wet with the waves coming over. It was impossible for a man to swim and it was certain death to jump over the side. Our life boats got loose and the waves stranded them against the rocks and it was like going through a rocky cruise. I was in my bunk when the wreck occurred and it knocked me out and by the time I got on the top-side the first thing I saw was the Young laying over on her side and her merrymen trying to hang on, the waves dashing them around, and some were in the water hollering for help. We picked up one man and did our best to get another and failed and he went down. You can't imagine how hard it is to hear men holler for life and some your best shipmates. Its awful when you can't help them. I am sending you a picture of three of the ships. The arrows show the Woodbury and the rocks we staid on at night. Will send papers later. We came down here on the train after the wrecks. There was a special train brought us down. We were sure tired and hungry when we got here Monday morning.

GRAND JURY WILL VISIT BANNER MINE

(Associated Press)
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 25.—The Jefferson County grand jury today expected to complete the testimony of witnesses to be called before it here in connection with the inquiry into a mummy at Banner mine September 10 and tomorrow the jury planned to visit the mining property to get a first hand perspective of the situation, according to announcement at the office of Solicitor Davis.

Among witnesses before the grand jury today were Roy L. Nolen, associate member of the board of convict supervisors and F. F. Blair, physician inspector for the board. Among other witnesses waiting to give testimony were the pit boss and an inside warden of Banner mine. It was after the Solicitor had been balked by a supreme court order in his effort to bring Banner convicts into court that he announced he would ask the grand jury to visit the prisoners and the mines. He said if the grand jury was denied admittance to the property he would ask for attachment writs and contempt citations.

OFFICIALS HERE

Two special cars of the Southern Railway, said to have been the cars of official Stainsfield and Miller of that railroad were attached to Southern passenger train No. 35 this morning which made a stop of 15 minutes in Decatur on its way to the TriCities. The officials made no statement as to their purposes.

Mimmo Colliery Scene of Disaster During Morning Hours

WATER BREAKS THRU PIT WALL

Relatives Rush to Scene But Little Hope Is Held Out

Glasgow, Scotland, Sept. 25—Seventy lives are believed to have been lost today when a deep pit at the James Mimmo company's colliery, near Falkirk, was flooded.

The water, which flooded the pit, broke through the walls of an adjoining pit which had not been used for years. The active pit was flooded so quickly that there was no opportunity to warn the miners. They had no chance to get to the pit head and only one man escaped after the crush of the waters.

Relatives rushed to the pit head but little hope was entertained to save any of the victims.

MISSION UNION TO MEET IN FALKVILLE

The quarterly meeting of the Woman's Missionary Union of the Morgan County Baptist Association will be held in Falkville, Friday, October 12. A program is being prepared by Mrs. A. T. Hanson, chairman of the Union in the county, which in addition to the regular business of the convention, will be rendered. It is expected that Dr. Bryan, of Nashville, head of the stewardship and budget department of the Southern Baptist convention, will make at least one address. A chief speaker of the Falkville as Dr. Bryan is expected in Morgan County during the second week in October. A chief speaker of the Falkville convention will be Miss Juliet Mather, Young People's Leader for the Southern Baptist convention.

HOT GREASE STRIKES YOUTH IN HIS EYES

Kitchens and hot grease have always been regarded as dangerous combinations, boys and men being often warned to "get out of the kitchen" if you cannot stand the hot grease. One Decatur boy, named Charles Mendel now wishes he had never entered the kitchen of a local restaurant, for the hot grease from frying eggs, struck him squarely in the eyes. Result, young Mendel is being led about by one of his boy companions. Physicians say the sight of Mendel's eyes will be restored by nature in time, not earlier than Christmas.

THIS WEEK REALLY STARTS THINGS IN DAILY'S CONTEST

Every One on the List of Candidates Should Report to the Contest Office This Week and Get the "45,000 Extra Votes," Which Closes Saturday, the 29th.

Monday started the fight for the big prizes to be given free by The Daily on the night of Nov. 17. Up to this time both the campaign department and the candidates have been occupied almost solely with preliminaries that are so essential to the successful outcome of any large undertaking. This department has been more than busy lending first aid to those who want one of the prizes; the workers themselves have been busy laying the foundation for a successful termination of their efforts. The new candidates who are entering daily would do well to borrow a bit from the experience of those already entered. The wise candidates report that much is to be gained through

NEXT MOVE UP TO AUTOMOBILE KING

Future Negotiations In Shoals Matter Hinge On Ford

REVISED OFFER IS ASKED BY WEEKS

Correspondence Made Public by Secretary After the Sale

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Possibility of further negotiations between the government and Henry Ford for the purchase of its remaining property at Muscle Shoals, Ala., hinged today on the Detroit manufacturer's decision as to submitting a revised offer which excluded the Gorgas steam power plant.

This part of the property was sold by the government yesterday to the Alabama Power company at a price approximately $3,500,000. Sale of the Gorgas plant was made on the last day under several extensions of time left the government to reach a decision under the war department contract with the power company, requiring that it either move the plant from the power company's land, or sell it to the company.

When Mr. Ford was summoned to Washington sometime ago and informed that the department of justice and the judge advocate general of the army had held the contract valid, he announced that he would take under advisement Secretary Weeks' suggestion that he submit a revised bid, excluding the Gorgas plant. He was then given to understand that the war department would propose to congress that the proceeds of the sale be credited against his proposed initial payment of $5,000,000.

Funeral Held For Frank Hamilton

Funeral services for the late Frank Hamilton, of Austinville, were held at the Methodist Episcopal church South of Austinville Monday morning, with interment at Chapel Hill in this county the old home of the family of the deceased. SHOOT TO KILL IS GOVERNOR'S ORDER

(Associated Press.)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Sept. 25.—With the crisis approaching between Governor Walton and the state legislature the executive commanded all male citizens between the ages of 21 and 45 to hold themselves in readiness to come to the assistance of the sovereign state of Oklahoma. The citizen soldiers were ordered to prepare to bear such arms as they possess or are able to obtain.

Instructions were given the Adjutant general to draw up all military forces necessary to block the proposed meeting of the legislature tomorrow "Shoot to kill," were the orders that will be given the troops, if necessary. The military were instructed to prevent the assembly of the legislature in the capitol or at any other place. The members of the legislature said that they would not resort to force but would take the case into court. Governor Jack Walton stated that he would welcome such an action on their part.

FORD ASSOCIATES VERY PESSIMISTIC

Manufacturer Warned He Wanted Whole Plant or None

CONTRACT VOID IS OLIVER'S BELIEF

Congressman Gave His Opinion to Secretary John W. Weeks

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Sale of the Gorgas steam power plant to the Alabama Power company for approximately $3,500,000 is held by President Coolidge to have effected in nowise the offer of Henry Ford to buy and lease the Muscle Shoals property in Alabama.

The President in discussing with visitors today the sale of the Gorgas plant as made yesterday by the war department was said to feel the remaining property built by the government in Alabama during the war was quite as an attractive proposition or Mr. Ford's purposes now as before the Gorgas plant passed from government ownership.

DETROIT, Sept. 25.—Sale of the Gorgas plant to the Alabama Power company probably means that Henry Ford will make no further bid for the remaining government property at Muscle Shoals, Ala. It was learned here today.

Mr. Ford, himself, was not at his Dearborn offices today and could not be reached to discuss the matter of the government in disposing of the Muscle Shoals property.

At the Ford offices, however, it was pointed out that Mr. Ford already had made it plain that the Gorgas plant was considered vital to the economical operation of the Muscle Shoals property. It was further pointed out that when the Detroit manufacturer was asked to bid on the Alabama property he asked to bid on the property as a whole and not in part. He made his offer on that basis it was said, and later stated that if part of the property were eliminated he must understand that his bid was rejected.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The sale yesterday by the government to the Alabama Power company of the Gorgas steam power plant, transmission lines and other accessories located on its property, was consummated. Representative Oliver, Democrat of Alabama stated today only after he had presented to Secretary of War Weeks what he considered conclusive evidence that the notice given by the Power company for sale or removal of the property was illegal.

The sale of the Gorgas plant will not, in Mr. Oliver's opinion, cause Henry Ford to withdraw from the Muscle Shoals project. "Mr. Ford and his friends," Mr. Oliver said, "will see to it that neither the Alabama Power company nor any interest allied with that company get Muscle Shoals and thus destroy the hope of the farmers for relief for its foreign supply of nitrate."

SIGNIFICANT TO ADVERTISERS.

If the old days were here when the question was debated: "Does advertising pay?", it might have been of great interest to know what the effect of lack of display ads had on retail trade in New York during the pressman's strike. But since advertising has become to be regarded as a necessity in reaching the trade, only a brief mention of advertising as effected by the strike is contained in the Associated Press dispatches which is in full as follows:

"Advertisers were pleased over prospects of settlement of the strike of pressmen which has curtailed advertising this week in New York's newspapers.

"Retail trade in the midst of what should be the heavy fall buying period has suffered from inability to use display advertising in newspapers.

"Several makeshift methods of reaching prospective customers were adopted by stores. Although in a few instances the advertisers reported results, advertisers unanimously appeal for the resumption of normal newspaper advertising conditions as soon as possible."

SECRETARY DAVIS ON MAINTAINING HIGH STANDARDS OF LIVING.

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, is proving to be one of the most acceptable speakers of the Republican administration. Mr. Davis' speech delivered recently at the Spanish-American War veterans' convention at Chattanooga, has been praised as one of his best. The secretary proposed that he would seek to have a law passed, which would require that American officials should examine all who proposed to immigrate to the United States, in the countries where they were born and before they took ship for America. Mr. Davis made mention of a number of needed reforms regarding the admittance of foreigners to this country. He pointed out that American standards of living could not be maintained if people of low standards of living were allowed to come here in large numbers.

In the course of his speech, Mr. Davis is quoted as favoring good living and working conditions and closest co-operation between laboring people and those for whom they work or against American standards of living could not be maintained.

In this connection Mr. Davis is quoted as saying: "I believe also that every laboring man should give a full and loyal day's work for the wage he receives. In my own experience I always felt it an obligation to give my employer the best that was in me—faithfully, loyally and honestly. Either that or quit."

Unless the responsibilities of business are shared alike by employer and employe, Mr. Davis reasoned it is only a question of time until that business will fail. It is equally true that all the people must co-operate in a government if it is to succeed, according to the secretary of labor.

Those who are discussing whether or not Henry Ford will run for President will confer a favor by telling whether or not he will get Muscle Shoals.

AMERICA NOT GUILTY OF FAILURE OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

Announcement of the League of Nations' determination to leave the question of its competency to some other body except the league itself, reminds of the proverbial "last straw that broke the camel's back." Latest dispatches indicated that fear lest certain nations withdraw from the league caused the council of the league to refuse to take a certain action without having it first approved. For the league to act in such a dependent way is like as if the supreme court of the United States should hold up one of its decisions, until congress, or the President had been consulted.

It will be extremely difficult to fault Senator Underwood for declaring he is no longer a strong supporter of the league, in view of the timidity of its officials. Senator Underwood is doubtless as strong as ever for the right kind of a league of nations. His recent statement that "I am no longer a strong advocate of the League of Nations. My original views are well known. Developments then and subsequently have changed my attitude. The failure of the league to function in the dispute between Italy and Greece had much to do with the change," shows he is weakening toward the present league and the way it has been managed.

It were better that the league tried and then failed to exercise jurisdiction—"better like Hector on the field to die, than like a perfumed Paris, turn and fly"—than for its officials to have surrendered to the judgment and will of other organizations of men.

But if the recent "back up" of the league officials was the last straw, it must also be remembered that not so much the proverbial "last straw" broke the camel's back, it was the "first straw." In other words it should be remembered that unless such great nations as the United States had refused to approve of the League of Nations, when it was first organized, the league might not now be in its present sorry plight.

CATTLE AND STILL MORE CATTLE FOR MORGAN COUNTY.

The effort being put forth by leaders of the Chamber of Commerce and other citizens interested in the general welfare relative to furnishing employment to farmers deserves and is receiving universal approval. The consensus of opinion is that dairying, not on a large scale, but on a sufficiently large scale to make it a paying proposition to own and use a "separator," is one of the things farmers should take up at once if possible. The prices offered for sour cream by creameries, the local one included, are attractive. Close to fifty cents can now be obtained by farmers for every pound of cream they can put on the market. They can send their milk to the creamery by the postman, and get a check for their product by mail without moving out of their tracks so to speak. By all means farmers of Morgan County who have not done so, should be getting a herd of at least five milk cows. The prices of five cows will not break anybody, especially if that person is intelligent and industrious. If it should appear the cows bought are not a paying proposition as milkers they can be fattened and sold for beef.

Especially, since the corn crop is such a fine one this year, farmers should be encouraged to supply themselves with more cows. The figures are available, that show it is practically impossible to lose money on a small herd of cattle. In the first place the presence of cattle on a farm, if they are managed to any advantage whatever, means that the farm lands will be improved. The cattle will eat much rough food and turn it into milk or flesh, that would otherwise be lost and do nobody any good. The habits of industry alone which a herd of cattle are sure to establish, are worth many more times in dollars and cents than it will take to purchase the cattle and maintain them.

This fall seems an auspicious time for all who can to stock their farms with every cow they feel they can use to an advantage. The rising price of cotton assures some extra money among most of the farmers. Next year there is no telling what cotton will be worth, or for that matter whether or not there will be any crop to speak of. The boll weevil, the leaf worm and their associates in the work of destroying cotton, have not been killed, they are all very much alive, and are no doubt in a fair way to greatly increase their damage to cotton during the next season. Certain pests can destroy cotton, but they cannot destroy cattle nor what cattle feed upon. One sure way to beat the boll weevil et al. is to put cattle and more cattle upon the cotton farms of the county.

Missionary Back From Foreign Field

Miss Carolyn Teague, of Falkville, a returned missionary from Japan will speak Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Methodist church in Austinville on "Japan, the Country, the People and the Customs."

Miss Teague, who returned to this country in June, was assigned for some time to the area recently laid waste by the earthquake and fire. She sailed June 24 from Yokohama, one of the cities hardest hit by the earthquake. Before her departure she visited a number of the noted public buildings of that city, which a few months later were destroyed.

While delivering her address to-night, Miss Teague will wear the native Japanese costume. She is on furlough until September 1924.

Minnie Howard vs. Will Howard.
Circuit court, Morgan County, Alabama, in Equity.
In this cause, it appears to the Register, from the affidavit of Solicitor for Complainant, that the residence and post office address of the defendant, Will Howard, are unknown, to learn the same, and that said defendant is over 21 years of age. It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made once a week for four consecutive weeks in the Decatur Daily, a newspaper published in Morgan county, requiring said defendant to plead, answer or demur to the bill in this cause by September 3, 1923.

Sept. 4-11-18-23.

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

Adele Garrison's New Phase of Revelations of a Wife

Why Dicky Told Madge He'd Explain in the Morning.

WORKING as quickly and as quietly as I could, I prepared gauze and bandages and tied up Dicky's head, offering but one comment:

"Think you should have a surgeon see that cut?"

"Nonsense! What would a surgeon do? That dope you fixed up was great stuff! I cleaned the thing thoroughly, and you're a nifty hand with a bandage. If you are my own wife and I shouldn't brag about you."

In that instant I realized the attitude he meant to assume toward the accident. A hundred questions trembled on my tongue, but I uttered none of them. He would have to offer me some explanation of his coming home in so alarming a state, and I wished to hear the unvarnished truth by any means. I could not rid myself of the suspicion—so far and so swiftly does jealous conjecture travel—that the version of the accident he would give me would not be the true one.

I could not resist a tiny barbed arrow.

"Well, Edwin will be along to-morrow night, or rather tonight—I consulted my wrist watch a bit ostentatiously—and if anything should develop, he can see to it."

Well, I know that Dicky stands in awe of anyone on earth. It is his brother-in-law, Dr. Edwin Brathwaite, the famous surgeon, and his clear-eyed, keen-brained sister, Harriet, and I had the satisfaction of seeing him wince, even though ever so slightly, at the thrust.

Madge Scores.

"That's the advantage of having a wife in the family," he agreed lightly, "but if I will, I will, I will look me over in the morning. There's no use troubling Edwin with anything so trivial, and I know you by this time he got here, you'd have me turning a temperature and on the verge of blood poisoning."

I had scored, though the victory gave me little pleasure, for I knew that the last thing Dicky wished was to have his brother-in-law examine the wound on his head, and my suspicious wonder concerning the queer accident was satisfied.

"I suppose I am foolish to worry about you," I wondered if he caught the double meaning in my words, "but I would feel easier if you went to Doctor Williams in the morning."

"You can see for yourself," then, Dicky answered, "for I'll call a taxi and beat it over there the first thing. Come to think of it, I'll have to visit him anyway, for I can't go around like this with a white bandage about my head. I'll fix it up with some strips of adhesive tape over the gauze, so I can wear a hat."

His voice trailed off weakly, and he clutched at the basin as if to steady himself. I saw that his will-power would serve him no longer, and again I took hold of his arm, this time drawing it over my shoulder.

"You're a Good Nurse."

"Don't be foolish, please," I pleaded. "You must get to bed at once. Lean on me, and I'll help you into your room."

He did not reject the aid I offered, but he stood irresolute for an instant and I saw the swift searching glance he sent toward the wastebasket which I always keep in the bathroom because our space in the other rooms is so limited. But I kept my own eyes carefully fixed in the opposite direction, and after a minute's indecision he gave a little sigh of acquiescence.

"I guess I am pretty well tucked out," he acknowledged with a wry smile twisting his pallid lips, "but I'll be all right after a good sleep. You're a very good nurse, old dear, and in the morning I'll tell you all about how I came by this little souvenir."

He indicated his bandaged head with a gesture, and he tried to make jaunty, but he failed miserably while my particular little devil whispered that waiting until morning would enable him to present me with a double-proof story.

I had no opportunity to dwell upon that promise, however, for Dicky's weakness made his guidance into the other room a difficult matter, and when I had assisted him in undressing, and he tucked his sturdy legs under me, I sat nearby until he was sound asleep, that I might attend to any real or fancied want of his.

But when I had assured myself that he was indeed snoring, I made my noiseless way to the bathroom, resolved to find the old bandages which Dicky had tried to keep me from seeing.

That's the advantage of having a wife in the family," he agreed lightly, "but if I will, I will, I will look me over in the morning. There's no use troubling Edwin with anything so trivial, and I know you by this time he got here, you'd have me turning a temperature and on the verge of blood poisoning."

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

And that one morning I was introduced to a young man whom I have learned to like very much. He called at my home one night, and we had a serious talk. He is considered a "dope" by some people, and he enjoys the society of companions who are "full of life." I am quiet and don't care for such things as "costs" do and, therefore, people think me queer. He, on the other hand, has not called since that night and sometimes he doesn't even speak. What can I do to win this man's friendship? He told me that he valued my friendship very much.

TEDDY: It is your place to greet the young man first. If you have done so, and he has failed to return your greeting, then make no effort to continue your friendship with him. Otherwise, there is no reason why you should not invite him to your home again.

I glanced down at the navy wool crepe she was fitting on me. "This is very smart," I agreed. "The frock was long and slim, with

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT Modern Parents' Worries

Copyright, 1923, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

FATHER and Mother are worried to death. So is Mummie.

And so are Mama and Papa—and I don't wonder.

Father and Mother have two lovely daughters. One is a blonde, oh she's as fair as a lily and has eyes like blue continents, only softer and brighter! The other is a brunette, with dimples and a way with her. And one is sixteen and the other fifteen, and Father and Mother thought they were little girls.

They'd think so yet if the young men in the neighborhood would let them.

But the young men have no such idea.

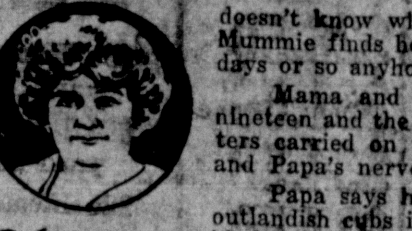

Lonely and Shocked

They ring the bell before ten in the morning. You can't go out on the porch by noon without falling over one or two awkward young fellows sprawling about somewhere on the steps. At one o'clock the automobiles begin to toot at the front gate and let's get the girls into the house in time for dinner.

Mummie, who lives next door to Father and Mother, is just about distracted. She has a perfectly lovely pal—that's what she calls him. Pal is her son and he's just turned seventeen and, dear me, Pal is the busiest person you just can't imagine!

The telephone jingles for Pal before Mummie is quite dressed in the morning and by the time she's given her orders for the day to the kitchen and the butcher and the vegetable man, Pal has been called to the 'phone at least half a dozen times, and Mummie does hate it so.

They come after him in chummy roadsters and in gay little runabouts; they send him notes and send him messages, and Pal really doesn't know whether he's on his head or his heels these days, and Mummie finds herself wishing he was a perfect fright just for a few days or so anyhow, so she'd get a chance to see something of him.

Mama and Papa have three lovely daughters. The oldest is nineteen and the youngest not quite fifteen, and the way those daughters carried on this Summer is really almost too much for Mama's and Papa's nerves.

Papa says he never saw such a lot of unmannerly, outrageous, outlandish cuts in his life, and he doesn't see what on earth any of his lovely daughters can see in any one of them.

But the daughters can see—and they do see, and they giggle and laugh and sing jazz songs, and, oh! the other night Papa went to the country club and there were his three lovely daughters doing a certain dance with three sleek-haired persons from nobody knows where.

So Papa stepped right out onto the floor and called every one of his daughters away, and he took them home and he issued a ukase and he says that not a single one of them shall ever dance a step again unless the waltz and the polka and the schottische and the lancers come back into fashion.

Do You Blame Them?

And one of the three lovely daughters had hysterics about it and the other had the sulks and the other smiled sweetly and said, "Yes, Papa," and I'm looking to hear of the Yes-Papa-One sometime within the next six or seven days.

And nobody knows what on earth to do with the girls. What with the automobiles and the moonlight and the jazz music and these new dances, Mother and Father, and Mummie and Dad, and Mama and Papa are just about going crazy.

And I don't blame them—do you?

Yet, somehow it seems to me, I seem dimly to remember, fathers and mothers who were perfectly horrified over the roller skate fad, and wasn't there a mummie somewhere who thought it was just too fast for anything for girls to go downtown and have their tinsy lonesomeness and what on earth did Mama and Papa think when Daughter two years ago gave her tinsy to somebody she'd never met more than two or three dozen times?

Fashions change, but we never get over being shocked—do we? I do wish we could hear from Son and Daughter once in a while and see what they actually do think about all this worrying business. Wouldn't it be illuminating?

HOME-MAKING HELPS

"Everything About the House Helps to Make the Home"

By WANDA BARTON

Here Are Described Some of the Real Novelties in Table Linens.

WITH the diminished popularity of the tablecloth as a table-covering, so many novelties in table sets have been brought forward that temptation lurks in every linen-shop and department store for the love of linens is born in most women.

Dainty sets come from Italy in cut work and the favorite stitches of the native women. The exquisite embroideries of France are worked on the finest of materials, including old handwoven fine linen with a white and colored thread combined. China is contributing her share also. Elaborate Chinese embroidery on grass linen is the latest artistic race have a faculty of sending forth their work so perfectly done that it looks as if human hands had no part in its making. The material never shows a blemish, or wrinkle, or how thin the material. One set has a long runner with wide, hand-hemstitched hems and the design is a lotus pool with the bud, leaf and matured blossom in artistic arrangement. On each plate dolly is a large single blossom is shown, on the glass dolly a leaf and bud—the design of good taste in artistic design.

Some Japanese sets are made of the finest of linen with delicate colored hemstitched hems, the embroidery being in the same tone as the color used. For instance, a delicate pink hem is used and wild cherry blossoms are done in the same coloring. Pale green is used with plum blossoms or delicate pink camellias, and blue lotus is done with the blue borders. Delicate moonlight blue is the shade chosen, of course, like the blue of the lotus blossom. These sets are rather scarce and should be picked up when seen, for they are seldom repeated in the same coloring.

Those who own elaborate Italian lace tablecloths of the different schools use them for state occasions. The cloths are costly, having in many cases point de Venise and Cluny lace combined with the intricate Ruchonnet embroidery. Sometimes the work is in squares and in other cases it comes in borders and centers. Panels of fine filet lace are often included with delicate designs of baskets and flowers. The knotted lace at the edge, or a heavy Brussels net cloth, lace edged, is the only thing permissible. These are generally preferred to the bare table, no matter how highly it is polished.

Many wonderful Italian sets have the coveted Punto Reale work on fine linen or elaborate cutwork designs on unbleached, fine linen. Little corded knobs and loops used for a finish are especially attractive if the Reticella insertion appears on the pieces.

Another novelty is damask used in sets with wide colored borders. Small patterns are used in the Irish damask, which stand out when properly laundered and are as clearly as though embroidered. Again, the damask comes in plain sets, simple, scalloped by hand or machine at the edges. These sets are very economical for everyday use as they wear and launder well and save the more practical daily use. Lavendering is always the problem which must be solved what is best for daily use, no matter how much our taste may rebel against practicality.

YOUR HEALTH

How Science Now Treats Many Problems of Warts

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York, Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

EVERY child afflicted with warts is anxious to get rid of them. He learns all the ways of "wishing" them off and all the magic methods for their mysterious removal. He may even walk down a country lane backward in the dark of the moon and hide in a hollow stump a piece of meat which has been rubbed on the wart.

All sorts of fantastic tales are told about the origin of warts. If you touch a toad you are sure to have them! Of course these things are not true, but it is hard to overcome the beliefs of a lifetime.

It is probable that warts are due to inoculation of the skin with some sort of germ. In a sense, therefore, they are infectious or contagious. But the germs have to be rubbed into the broken skin, so near contact is very unlikely to result in infection. It must be said, however, that the cause of warts is not definitely proven.

There are many varieties of warts. There are flat warts and cauliflower warts, warts like a bunch of grapes or like a cockscomb. There are pointed, fig-shaped, moist and pigmented warts.

Perhaps the different varieties are produced by different types of the causative germ. If the skin is kept clean there is little likelihood of infection. Uncleanliness, bruising and constant irritation of the skin, continued moisture from any cause—all these things prepare the soil for the growth of warts.

The most common of the domestic remedies for this trouble is to tie a string around the growth. Repeated tightening of the knot ultimately chokes off the circulation and causes the wart to die and drop off the hand.

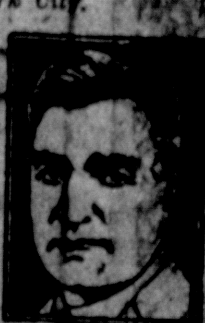

Sometimes it is tied tightly and then the tissue is shaved off by the kindly doctor's scalpel. After this the raw surface is cauterized with carbolic acid or silver nitrate and is employed.

Repeated freezings will in themselves be sufficient to kill the wart. Electrolysis, the X-ray and radium are other agencies employed for their destruction.

Salicylic acid in colloid, glacial acetic acid and other chemical caustics will destroy the growth.

Sometimes warts come from certain disturbances in the blood. In every case, whether purely local or from constitutional causes, the treatment must be applied by a doctor who has examined the growth.

Carelessly used, these strong acids are liable to burn the surrounding

Answers to Health Questions

W. M. B. Q.—Will you kindly advise me as to what causes the skin to crack open between the toes?

A.—This condition may be due to excessive perspiration, or some skin condition. I would suggest that you consult a physician for urine analysis to determine the exact cause of the trouble, after which suitable treatment can be prescribed.

D. E. Q.—I am a young man twenty-two years old and am five feet three inches tall. Do you think it possible for me to grow any?

A.—It is possible that you may grow for a few years yet, but I doubt it. Stretching exercises, touching the floor with the knees without flexing the knees, may help you.

K. Y. Z. Q.—Will you kindly advise me how to prevent the skin from falling out?

A.—For full particulars kindly send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and retain your question.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

Significant Incidents in the Lives of Famous Women

By MARK STUMVESANT

What Her Great Courage Won for Mrs. Oliphant

It is surprising how many women writers have embarked upon their careers either in an effort to forget some great sorrow, or to support their families when they have suddenly found themselves widowed or destitute of any other means of support.

The lives of many of these writers are as absorbing in interest as those of the heroines whose lives are chronicled by them. Among these authors is Margaret Oliphant Wilson, known throughout the English-speaking world with great affection, as "Mrs. Oliphant."

"When I thus began the world anew, I had for all my fortune a out a thousand pounds of debts, a small insurance of, I think, two hundred pounds on Frank's life, my furniture laid up in a warehouse, and my own faculties, such as they were, to make our living and pay off our burdens by."

These are the words which Mrs. Oliphant herself used in describing the desperate straits in which she found herself at the death of her husband. She was penniless. She was not a strong woman. She had a large family of small children, several of whom were very delicate and needed the best of medical attention.

But Mrs. Oliphant had come from a long line of sturdy ancestors. In her veins flowed the individual courage and unconquerable spirit of her Scottish forebears.

She was born in "The Heart of Midlothian" in 1823, and like the famous Sir Walter Scott, who has made that country famous in a beautiful novel bearing the title just quoted, Mrs. Oliphant set out to write of Scottish life.

So beautifully did she write and with such charm and warmth did she depicted scenes from the land of her birth, that soon she found herself successfully emerging from the great difficulties which had descended upon her with her own sword.

She Was Never Discouraged.

Although her life was one of great activity and tremendous responsibility and worry—for she had much illness to cope with in her young family—Mrs. Oliphant was never discouraged.

It is said that she often sat down to write with a breaking heart and with her brain almost numbed by anxiety. But realizing what her efforts would mean, she would quickly emerge from her slough of despair, summon her courage and write with vigor and inspiration.

With the publication of "Zaire," Mrs. Oliphant's name came before the public and she was moderately discussed. But when "Chronicles of Carlingford" was presented to the public, her success was assured.

From then on Mrs. Oliphant was able to provide comfortably for her family and her struggles were at an end—after fifteen years of effort.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 26.

The sidereal operations for this day are not to be read as entirely of a friendly nature. Although new projects or propositions may be taken under consideration, it may be hazardous to risk money or security on financial obligations. It may not be safe to lend money, a dispute is in an unfriendly position to all money operations. The health should receive more than usual attention, and it may be well to be on guard against deceit.

Those whose birthday it is should give close attention to business and be cautious in the lending of money or going security. They should beware treachery and should be careful of the health. A child born on this day should receive firm training in perseverance and grit, as it may encounter difficulties in the carving of its career. It will succeed in business.

Athens News

Athens and Limestone county is now ready for one of the best county fairs that has ever been held here. Many of the exhibits were brought in to the fair grounds on Monday and placed Tuesday. It is expected that the exhibit of farm products will be better this year than they have been for many years. The poultry show will especially good.

Many of the special attractions for the fair are now on the fair grounds and getting ready to open in good shape on Wednesday morning. R. H. Walker, the fair secretary, has left nothing unturned for the success of the fair and all the people are expecting a good year.

Kennemer-Willis - Wholesale Gro.

very Company has sold their large warehouse on the corner of Dryor street and the railroad to the Farm Bureau. The Bureau expects to use the building for storing cotton, fertilizer, etc. Kennemer-Willis Grocery Company has leased the lower room from the Masonic Hall for five years. This is one of the most rapidly growing companies in Athens and has enjoyed a large trade from its beginning. Their new location will be just as suitable for their work.

Limestone County court is in session and will work on the civil docket this week. Judge O. Kyle is the judge in charge. In his usual firm and positive way he conducts the court in a way that is pleasing to the public.

Dr. J. O. Williams, pastor of the First Baptist church, left Monday at noon for Bessemer where he goes to conduct a revival for the next two weeks with the Southside church of that place. Marvin Pharr of Atlanta has been engaged to do the singing and conduct the music. Dr. Williams conducted a meeting in Union church of Bessemer during July which was a great success and it is thought this one will be a greater success.

The plans for the new dormitory at Athens College have been approved and are now ready for the contractor. Dr. B. S. Glasgow, the President, says the contract will be given on October 9th. The college is having a very successful session so far this year.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY CENTRAL M. E. CHURCH.

The Missionary Society of the Central M. E. church met on Monday afternoon at this parsonage with Messrs. George A. Harris and Amanda McCarthy as joint hostesses.

When this body of representative women had assembled, the president, Mrs. L. C. Mayes, called for order and opened the meeting with a song followed by a prayer led by Mrs. J. A. Lovin, after the report of the last meeting by the secretary, Mrs. J. A. Bush, the program for the afternoon was taken up. Mrs. J. A. Lovin was the leader.

At the invitation of Mrs. Harris the ladies remained for a social hour when ices and cakes were served. The society has recently redecorated the interior of the parsonage. Mrs. Harris invited the ladies to inspect the house up and down stairs the visitors went on the tour. Especial attention was called to a console in the hall that was made from the foot of an old side board, this suggestion came from the fertile brain of Mrs. J. L. Gunter, whose tests was evidenced throughout the entire interior.

The names of several new members were added to the roster of this organization.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY OF AUSTINVILLE.

The missionary Society of Austinville, met at the church on Monday afternoon when plans were discussed for raising money to put a new roof on the parsonage.

That Morning Lameness

If you are lame every morning, and suffer urinary ills, there must be a cause. Often it's weak kidneys and avert more serious troubles, use Doan's Kidney Pills. You can rely on Decatur testimony.
Mrs. W. A. McNeill, 415 E. Pond Street, Decatur says: "I know from experience how reliable Doan's Kidney Pills are. My kidneys became weak and didn't act as they should. When ironing, I got a terrible, heavy ache across my kidneys and had to put up my work and rest mornings. I felt lame and achy through my back. I felt tired and worn out all the time and my housework was a burden. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they did me all the good."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. McNeill had. Foster Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

10 Years Go In 30 Minutes—My White Youth Clay By Edna Wallace Hopper

I was a plain girl, and I made myself a beauty. I grew old, like others, but I kept my youthful bloom. Now, after 40 years as a stage star, I still look like a girl of 19. All because of beauty aids which French experts perfected. Now, as a duty to my sex, I offer these helps to others. And I am taking time in a busy life to tell the facts about them.
Clay Did the Most
You read much now about facial clays. Millions of women use them. But they are crude and muddy, like the primitive clays I used years ago. They do amazing things. Any woman who on is Clay does herself injustice. Nothing else can so multiply beauty or so preserve one's youth. But there are better clays today. French experts after 20 years of study, have perfected a new-type clay. It is white, refined and dainty. It brings anifold effects. That is the play I now use—my White Youth Clay. And to that I owe my baby skin at the age of 62.
Its Magic Effects
Most of you know what clay does. You see beauties everywhere whose complexions are due to clay. You see mothers who look like daughters and grandmothers who look like girls—all because of clay.
Clay purges the skin of all that clogs it—the causes of sallow, blackheads and blemishes. It renews the skin. It brings the blood to the surface and revives it. The hat rosy afterglow which is the delight of many women. It takes time to drop ten years from the skin, corrects lines and wrinkles, reduces pores.
The ordinary crude clays do that. Then what is the new-type clay, at times as effective? You must what it did for me.
Mine is this new-type clay it my White Youth Clay. I supplied by all druggists a counter at 50c and 10c a tin. Also my Youth Cream, follow the clay. My Face my famous liquid cleanser. Hair Youth, which brings vibrant hair. My Beauty Cream with each.
My day is nearly over. No to bring others the joy of youth. Now you can have helps which made me what I today with my Youth Clay. What tomorrow brings you. I see Honor. Business address: Kosha, Wis.—Adv.

Is Every Day a "Labor Day" at YOUR Home?

If You Are a Husband: You know better than anyone else how that life of yours feels when evening comes. Is she tired? Worn with her day's work? "Ready to drop," as she might express it? No wonder. You would be, too, if you had to work as she does. Mighty few labor-saving devices to lighten her labors. She works much as women worked 2000 years ago.

If You Are a Wife: You know that you cannot "eat your cake and keep it, too." You cannot drudge all day, slaving under old-fashioned methods, and expect to feel fresh and fit when your husband comes home. You must find some way to conserve your strength and keep your health.

Here is the Remedy

In the evening, a wife greets her husband with a smile when she has a genuine McDougall Kitchen Cabinet.

The McDougall lightens her labor, saves her, actually, HUNDREDS of steps, leaves her fresh and fit and smiling.

On a convenient work station, at which everything she needs is gathered—that is the McDougall Kitchen Cabinet.

It does away with the trot-trot-trotting back and forth under methods of long ago. It keeps women young!

At our store, you will see many McDougall models—ones to fit your home and suit your pocketbook. And convenient terms of payment may be arranged—so that you may have your McDougall at once. We will deliver it to your home within 24 hours.
